CORNISH, N. H., July 31.—The killing of two American bluejackets by natives at Port-au-Prince, Hayti, was reported officially to President Wilson as soon as he got up to-day. He expressed concern and directed that all information obtainable be forwarded to him from Washington.

In answer to questions concerning the Haytian situation the President said that he knew no more than the public generally and that he could add nothing to the facts already published. He said that he was keeping in close touch with developments.

The killing of the American sailors had a depressing effect on the President. He received only a brief outline of the messages received from Rear-Admiral Caperton, commanding the American landing party at Port-au-Prince. He probably will find some way later of showing his appreciation of the work of the two men killed.

The Americans who lost their lives were William Gompers, seaman, of Brooklyn, and Cason S. Whitehurst, ordinary seaman, of Norfolk, Va.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Six Haytiens were killed and two wounded in the clash Thursday night at Port-au-Prince in which two American bluejackets were slain. Admiral Caperton reported to the Navy Department to-day. The Admiral added that there was danger of further revolutionary disturbances.

The battleship Connecticut, with 600 marines aboard, sailed from the Philadelphia Navy Yard to-day bound for Hayti. The Connecticut, under command of Capt. Burrell, will pick up two hundred more marines at Norfolk and then will sail direct to Port-au-Prince, to assist Admiral Caperton in preserving order.

The Navy Department has decided to send the hospital ship Solace to Hayti. No further casualties to the American forces have been reported, but officials have come to the conclusion that the American occupation will continue for some time.

The Navy Department issued this statement: "Rear Admiral Caperton reports from Port-au-Prince that during the entry of the United States force into the town of Port-au-Prince and the fighting during the previous night, six Haytiens were killed and two wounded. The disarming of soldiers and civilians is still going on, and a quantity of arms and ammunition already has been collected and placed under guard in the palace. Due to the large area covered by the city it will take some time to complete disarming every one."

"He also reports that the revolutionary committee declared for Rosalvo Bobo. The selection of this committee, however, was only made after an attempt to get twelve other prominent men to accept the candidacy. These other men would not accept. The riot party at Cape Haitien, it is reported, has declared for Bourard."

"In view of the conditions almost sure to follow the rivalry between these various candidates and their adherents in various parts of the country, the political conditions are very uncertain. Another dangerous element in the situation may result from the presence of a large number of unemployed men in and around Port-au-Prince."

Nephew of Samuel Gompers Is One of the Slain Bluejackets.
William Columbus Gompers, the United States seaman who was killed in Hayti, was the favorite nephew of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and the son and sole support of Mrs. Sophie Gompers, widow of Jacob Gompers, who died nine years ago. He was twenty-two years old and had been in the navy six years. The name Columbus was given him because he was born Oct. 12, 1893, the four-hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America.

MORGAN'S CRUISE ENDS WITH FULL RECOVERY

Financier Returns to Long Island
Estate After Week Aboard
Yacht Corsair.

J. Pierpont Morgan returned to his East Island estate yesterday after a cruise on his steam yacht Corsair, begun a week after he was shot by Frank Holt.

It was said at his residence last night that Mr. Morgan has fully recovered from his wounds. He will probably go to his office early next week. He will go to New London on the Corsair Aug. 5 to join the New York Yacht Club fleet on its three weeks' cruise.

Mr. Morgan was taken to his landing place from the yacht in a speed boat. He was met at the landing by an automobile which took him to the house.

COMMISSIONER WOODS WILL APPEAL ORDER TO REINSTATE HUSSEY

Wants to Know Who Is to Be Judge in Questions of Veracity.

The decision of the Brooklyn Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reinstating James E. Hussey to the Police Department, with the rank of Captain and the annual salary of Inspector, will be carried to the Court of Appeals by Police Commissioner Woods and the Corporation Counsel. The appeal will be made to determine whether the Supreme Court or the Commissioner is to be the final arbiter in cases where questions of veracity and not questions of law are paramount. Hussey will immediately retire if his reinstatement is confirmed. An appeal is made possible because Justice Mills dissented from his colleagues.

The majority opinion holds that the testimony of Hussey's accusers was of insufficient weight to warrant his dismissal. Justice Mills thought "the decision amounts to substituting our judgment for that of the Commissioner on what is merely a question of the veracity of opposing witnesses."

Hussey was one of the police officials convicted in the Harlem graft trials. His conviction was reversed, which made him eligible for reinstatement, but he was removed Oct. 25, 1914, by Commissioner Woods, after trial before Third Deputy Commissioner Godley.

It was charged at the police trial that Hussey in 1909 and 1910, while in charge of the Sixth Inspection District, Manhattan, permitted the illegal sale of liquor at the Monument Hotel, Eighth Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-third Street, Manhattan. Patrolman James E. Wrenn testified that he collected $75 a month during the period mentioned and paid the most of it to Hussey for permitting James Dougherty, manager of the hotel, to sell liquor illegally on Sundays.

LIEUT. RANDLE CECIL DIVORCES YANKEE WIFE, FORMER CHORUS GIRL

Famous Lord Salisbury's Grandson Finds Year of Wedded Bliss Enough.

LONDON, July 31.—Lieut. Randle William Gascoyne-Cecil, grandson of the famous Marquis of Salisbury, eldest son of the Rev. Lord William Cecil, an honorary chaplain to King George, has obtained a divorce from Dorothy May Jannaway, a charming American chorus girl, whom he married in June a year ago. In his suit, the action of the Cecil, cited Eric Vigers as co-respondent.

Lieut. Cecil, who is twenty-five, has long had a leaning toward the stage and an admiration for comedy women of the theatre. So fascinating are the boards to him that he appeared in small parts at the Gaiety Theatre and accompanied George Grossmith on the American tour of "After the Girl." The girl who married him is the daughter of an American mining engineer.

Although the members of his distinguished family have been Tories for generations, Lieut. Randle Cecil has not been conservative. In the broad sense of the word, he was "sent down" from Oxford University for an escapade on Guy Fawkes Day in 1908. In a moment of gaiety he threw stones at an ancient window of Balliol College, it was charged. "Sent down" is a euphemism for being expelled. Young Cecil was a member of the Oxford Alpine Club, made up of aristocratic bloods who found diversion in climbing over the roofs of the old town, tying themselves together with a rope as if they were ascending Mount Blanc.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW!

How to Keep Well, Keep Strong and Keep a Perfect Figure, Told in a Series of Illustrated Lessons

To-Day's Illustrated Lesson Explains the Necessity for Perseverance in Adhering to Diet and Exercise Rules and Gives Additional Trunk Raising Exercises.

LESSON XXIX.

By Pauline Furlong.

The Evening World's Authority on All Questions of Woman's Physical Well Being.

To-day you must not forget to fill out the next to the last column on your measurement chart. Stand on the scales and record your weight; take the tape measure and note carefully the measurements of all portions of your body listed on the chart. Compare the results with those you set down when you began to take this course in how to keep well, keep strong and keep a perfect figure.

From the letters that I have received, I know that some of you have already been able to discern a needed and welcomed improvement. Your superabundant curves have lessened; or, on the other hand, your scrawny angles have softened and disappeared. I have been delighted, although not surprised, to hear of the success which is rewarding the efforts of many of you who have faithfully performed, every day, the exercises I have recommended, and who have eaten, slept, bathed and breathed according to a sane system.

FAULTS OF YEARS' GROWTH NOT OVERCOME QUICKLY.

One point I wish to make again, however. It is perfectly possible that you may note to-day no change whatsoever in your weight and measurements, even though you have conscientiously practiced for five weeks the lessons in health and exercise. Nevertheless, you must not be discouraged. Ask yourselves the questions: "How long have I been growing fat? How long have I been growing thin?" The answers will show you why you have no right to complain if rational living for a period of a little over a month fails to turn you into a Venus.

Just as in the case of illness one person's recuperative powers differ greatly from another's, so does the tendency to gain weight differ from that of another's—both of which states are really forms of disease—some recover more quickly than others. The time in which it will take you to acquire a beautiful, shapely figure depends partly on the cause of your excessive stoutness or thinness, partly on the length of the period during which the condition has persisted, partly on your general health and the conditions of your life.

Of one thing I am certain. Any one who has no organic complaint and who has taken my exercises and my hygienic advice for five weeks will find to-day that she did when she started. She is better to the point of view of health and vitality. And these are the twin foundations of beauty. If the superabundant has not yet reared itself, and discouraged. Keep on working, and remember that plattitudinous but truthful statement that Rome wasn't built in a day.

MUSCLE FLESH MUST REPLACE STARVED OR OVERFED TISSUE.

Some of you still doubt that the same exercises can possibly be good for developing needed tissue and removing surplus tissue. Since more of these exercises will be given next week, I will explain to you again just why they possess a double value. It is necessary to bring about certain physical processes to correct any deviation from the normal weight. The organs which take care of eliminating the body's waste must be put in a healthy condition. The blood must be purified by varying and brought to the surface of the body. Muscle flesh must be substituted for starved or overfed tissue.

If the body's waste is not being properly taken care of, waste tissue may accumulate as flabby fat; or, on the other hand, the blood may be so weakened that it cannot perform properly its work of tissue renewal. Taking plenty of fresh air into the lungs causes increased oxidation, the burning up of waste tissue, and enriches the blood so that it is able to go about its business of building healthy tissue.

Exercise starts all the physical processes which either the stout or the thin woman needs. By causing perspiration it keeps the pores of the skin in good working order, and it compels deep breathing. Also, exercise makes two muscles grow where one languished before, and the symmetrical, beautiful figure is the one encased in muscle like a garment.

THREE VARIATIONS OF THE TRUNK RAISING EXERCISES.

Now do you see? The movements illustrated to-day show three new variations of the trunk raising exercise from which all the strengths and reduces the abdominal muscles, and, by improving the digestion, becomes of great value to the thin woman as well as to the stout one.

With the wand which you have already used in simple movements lie flat on the floor, the wand held horizontally across the thighs, as in Pose No. 1. Lift yourself to a sitting position, using only the muscles of the trunk, and at the same time raising the wand until it is on a level with your shoulders, as you sit erect in Pose No. 2. Do not bend your arms in this exercise, and practice it till you can repeat it a dozen times in succession.

labelled "most difficult" should only be practised by young and physically sound women. To perform it sit on a chair and let yourself sink backward until your head and toes touch the floor, as in the illustration. Then, with your arms clasped on your chest, bring yourself to an erect position. In trying this exercise be very careful not to strain yourself.

Readers of Miss Furlong's articles who are following her lessons are invited to write to her, in care of The Evening World, requesting information that will aid them in following her rules for diet and exercise. Miss Furlong also will be interested to learn the results of her lessons as shown by your charts.

Letters From Evening World Readers Following Miss Furlong's Lessons.

MYRTLE writes: "I am 36 or 37 but measurement, and follow your diet and exercises for reducing. I have not eaten any lunch for several weeks and look pale and feel weaker. Do you think I ought to continue?"

If you are only thirty-inch bust measure, why do you follow my diet and strenuous exercises for obesity? What you need is the illustrated lessons for developing given the entire week of July 19. You should eat luncheon, consisting of good wholesome foods such as bananas and cream, whole wheat bread, thick soups, etc.

MRS. R. S. asks: "As I do all my own housework, climb many flights of stairs, each day and exercise, I have not eaten any lunch for several weeks and look pale and feel weaker. Do you think I ought to continue?"

Fresh-air outdoor life, such as walking with the children will be sufficient exercise for you unless you desire to develop a certain part of your body. Follow the diet published the week of July 19. The stewed fruits is very good for you, and even better served with cream, whole wheat bread with plenty of sweet butter.

MRS. S. B. W. asks: "How can I overcome being stout?"

Any and all of the exercises, especially the wand drills, will gradually cause you to stand straight.

MISS L. D. asks: "Do you think tight corsets cause lumps of fat on the shoulder blades?" The fat from the stomach has to go somewhere when the corset squeezes it away from the waist line. The proper corset, one which fits you, will not cause this. It is unhealthy to tie tightly.

MISS R. S. writes: "Please tell me how to reduce bust and hips." Eat very sparingly of my diet and the fat will gradually disappear from your breast and hips.

Practice the rolling exercises to reduce your hips. These were given July 8.

M. B. asks: "What will cure pimples on my back?" Eat fruits, salads and green vegetables. Do not allow constipation to exist. Only exercises and less food will bring you down to my measurements if you weigh 147 and are my height.

COULDN'T FIND CLERGYMAN.

As Result Girl's Mother Prefers a Charge of Abduction.

Benjamin G. Cosby of No. 860 East One Hundred and Sixtieth Street was held in $1,500 bail for a hearing on Aug. 10 by Magistrate Simms in Morrisania Court yesterday on a charge of abduction made by Mrs. Doris Lichenstein of No. 882 Kelly Street, Bronx.

Mrs. Lichenstein charged that Cosby took her daughter, Jennie, sixteen, to Passaic, N. J., July 19, and after vainly seeking a clergyman who would marry them, returned to her home, where he was arrested.

DAUGHTERS DECLARE FATHER WAS SLAIN; $17,000 IS MISSING

Body of Moynan Thrown Under Trains, They Say,
to Hide Crime.

The three daughters of Richard Moynan, of No. 2126 Sixty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, whose body was found on the New York Central tracks at Dobbs Ferry, said to-day they were convinced that their father had been murdered and robbed and the body thrown on the tracks in the hope that it would be destroyed.

Mrs. Wagner, one of his daughters, said to-day her father had a certified check for $17,000 in his pocket when he left Brooklyn last Wednesday to close a business deal near Dobbs Ferry. A careful search of the clothing and the trunk where the body was found failed to disclose the check or any fragments of it.

Mrs. Wagner said that her father was so certain of the success of the deal that he and the rest of the family had planned a trip to the San Francisco Fair.

Moynan, a motion picture promoter, left home Wednesday, telling his daughters, Nellie and Fannie, he was going up-State to make a business contract and they need not worry if he did not return that night. When he had not returned yesterday they began sending telegrams of inquiry.

Miss Nellie, twenty-two years old, was on her way home on a Bay Ridge train yesterday when she read in an evening paper that the body of a man named Richard Moynan had been found near Hastings. She fainted, and at the Twenty-second Street station was removed from the train and treated by a physician.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE BY JUSTICE CUPID

Paroled "Trusty" in Joliet Prison
Had Found Chance to Fall in Love.

CHICAGO, July 31.—For the last twenty-one years William Roach, "sent up" for life for murder, has occupied bachelor quarters in the Illinois State Penitentiary at Joliet.

Sometimes "Trusty" Roach was sent into the downtown district of Joliet on errands. He got in the habit of passing the restaurant of Mrs. William Edwards, to get a look at the pretty girl who sat at the cashier's desk behind the plate glass window of the restaurant. She was Roach's daughter, Miss Hannah Edwards, daughter of the proprietress.

And Roach, a bachelor by force, sentenced to a life term of bachelorhood, fell in love.

The last Legislature passed a law permitting the parole of lifers. Roach was the first man paroled. He has been called the best behaved prisoner in Joliet, although he had killed Police Officer Duddleston at Rush Street Bridge in Chicago.

POLICEMAN ON GUARD OVER INCUBATOR BABY; KIDNAPPING IS FEARED

C. R. Barnes, Author, Says
Woman Tried to Steal Baby
From Institution.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 31.—A big policeman guards the incubator baby of Charles R. Barnes, a writer of short stories and poetry. The baby is five weeks old and the author appealed to the police to keep watch over the Boardwalk establishment where it is being cared for, because he declares he is afraid the child may be kidnapped.

"We placed the baby in the incubator in an effort to save its life and it is doing well," Barnes said. "But two weeks ago two women went to the incubator, one of them claiming to be Mrs. Barnes, and the other a trained nurse and tried to take the baby away."

Barnes and his wife are living at No. 220 Drexel Avenue, this city, but their home is in New York City. Their marriage last year was romantic.

Mrs. Barnes is the daughter of Judge J. C. Bloch of the Court of Common Pleas of Cleveland, O., and last summer, when the writer went to visit his father, a retired clergyman of the same city, he met Miss Bloch.

Judge Bloch disapproved of the union. He went even further and had his daughter put into a sanatorium, but through Barnes's efforts she was soon released. Then Judge Bloch obtained a "white slave" warrant against Barnes, but the news that his daughter and Barnes had been married in New York caused the Judge to abandon this action.

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK IS SEIZED AS SPEEDER

Singer, Indignant When Arraigned in Santa Ana, Cal., Asks, "Would You Arrest Governor?"

SANTA ANA, Cal., July 31.—It's a disgrace—it's an outrage."

Mme. Schumann-Heink, arrested while en route from San Diego to Los Angeles in her automobile, was the personification of indignation when arraigned before Justice Cox for speeding.

"Why, me speeding," she exclaimed. "It's preposterous. Do you know who I am? I am the great Schumann-Heink of Chicago, and I go to the Baerenferst to sing. Would you arrest the Governor of California?"

Mme. Schumann-Heink grew silent when told by the Court it didn't make any difference who she was or where she was going and all were treated alike. She demanded a trial and deposited a bond of $10.

MOTHER BRAVES WAR TRENCH PERILS TO FIND HER SON

New York Woman Crosses
Ocean Guided by Her Mother's Instinct.

GREETED BOY AT FRONT.

French Were Slow to Believe Girl-Like Visitor Had Such Strapping Son.

One of the passengers on the French liner Chicago, which arrived yesterday afternoon from Bordeaux, was Mrs. Rose Planet, of No. 216 West Ninety-fifth Street, New York. Mrs. Planet is tall and dark and willowy. She has dark hair and blue eyes and the figure of a girl. No one would dream that she is the mother of a son twenty-three years old.

But it was from a successful search for that son that she started yesterday, a search which took her through the trenches of France. She has the distinction of being one of the few women at the front exposed to the fire of musketry and the storm of artillery. It was through her influence with a General in the French army that this could be accomplished, and the entire army knew of the hunt of the "beautiful lady" for her son. She traversed nearly the entire battlefield.

Her son Paul left here at the beginning of the war as an automobile engineer, and his mother was proud that he should go and fight for his and her country. But as time went on and she received no letters from the front, Mrs. Planet became worried. In vain she tried to locate the boy, she used all the influence she had and sent all the friends to trace him, but without avail. Each day she thought would surely bring her a letter, for she could not believe that Paul was dead. Her mother's instinct told her that he was alive.

LIKE SEARCHING FOR A NEEDLE IN A HAYSTACK.
Mrs. Planet resolved to go to France and find Paul. She would go to the front if necessary, but find him she would. She sailed on the Espagne on June 5. At army headquarters in Paris they could tell her nothing of Paul Planet, an automobile engineer. They had no trace of him. They didn't know what regiment he might be with. It was impossible to say where, on the immense stretch of battlefield, he might be.

"I know he is alive," she said, "and I will find him."

She went first to the Vosges Mountains, where she learned that her boy had been first assigned. From there she went to the Arras region. She visited trench after trench, and her story preceded her along the battlefield. To the officer it appeared incredible that so young looking and beautiful a woman could have a son in the trenches—a son man-grown and doing a man's work.

SPIES SON FROM A RAILROAD CAR WINDOW.
Just where she found Paul she would not say. But she was traveling through the war zone on a railroad train when she saw him through a car window. He was helping to lift an auto truck from a freight train.

"My son, my Paul!" she cried, and jumped up and grasped the bell rope. When the train started to move it was two miles beyond the freight train on the siding. But without hesitation Mrs. Planet started back on the track and walked the two miles into the arms of her son, the most surprised man in the French army.

"My mother's instinct," she said, "told me that he was not dead and that I would find him. He had written to me, he told me, but I suppose his letters all were lost, as were mine to him. I could not keep him long, of course, but I had seen him and held him in my arms again. I was satisfied."

HER AUTO HORN LIKE TRUMP JOSHUA BLEW

Philadelphia Woman Fined $5 for Endangering Walls of Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 31.—"This lady has a Jericho horn on her auto."

Patrolman Helmut had this accusation to Recorder Gaskill to-day against Mrs. E. B. Frost of Philadelphia, passing the summer at No. 110 South Dorset Avenue, Chelsea. Students of the Old Testament will remember that when Joshua and his hosts blew the trumpets and blew the walls of Jericho fell.

Mrs. Frost denied indignantly that she broke any walls, even that she broke the Anti-Speed Law, although Helmut charged that for fifteen minutes she blew the horn when she drove.

"Five dollars fine," said Recorder Gaskill gently. "A warning, this five. Try to add to the city's quietude by muffling that Jericho horn, I beg you, madam."

SOLDIER BOYS BATTLE UNDER SCORCHING SUN

Last Sham Fight Takes Place To-Day Before Breaking Up of Camp Whitman.

CAMP WHITMAN, Pishkill Plains, July 31.—It was scorching hot here yesterday, but the soldier boys stood the heat well. Gen. Leonard Wood was expected to visit the camp, but at the last moment was detained at Pittsburgh and wired he could not come.

The work of the men yesterday was a direct encounter of opposing forces coming in opposite directions, making necessary some quick action and some pretty maneuvering. No decision was given by the umpire. Both sides, theoretically, lost about half of their men.

The last sham battle of the present camp takes place to-day. There will be a long day's work, consisting of trench digging, mine laying, sapping and other engineering work. The opposing side will prepare for an attack and defend their position against it. The battle begins at 7:30 A. M. and will continue with practically no let-up till after 4 P. M. This will be the climax of the week's work, and is expected to show whether the men have gained by their experience during the present encampment.

The cavalry will break camp late this afternoon and put their horses on board the cars at New Hamburg at about 4 o'clock. The second brigade of infantry will remain until Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. All of the troops will be gone before afternoon, except the regulars. No orders have been received for them as yet.

WAR ON ICE DEALERS.

Ordinance Requiring Sales by Weight to Be Enforced.

Commissioner Joseph Hartigan of the Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measures, will begin a campaign against all ice dealers who are selling ice without weighing it. Ice must be sold by weight, the Commissioner explained, according to the Code of Ordinances. A fine of $50 may be imposed for each violation, and Commissioner Hartigan says he will collect on all convictions.

"The public in the city are now in the habit of buying ice not by weight but by piece," he explained. The Commissioner said that the people invariably buy a five-cent piece or a ten-cent piece of ice, apparently being unconcerned about its weight so long as the sale is pleasing."

Inspectors of the bureau have received orders to enforce the ordinance.
